- Likes: Logic warmups Logical ways to layout essays (never taught in high school how to do that) Disliked: Not a lot, just the amount of time focused on the logic warm ups at the beginning of class took away from the focus on the readings I felt like. Overall great Prof who is very helpful
- Logic exercises at beginning of class should be shorter to allow time to look at readings Would appreciate more peer review sessions for papers Coursework is interesting and helps to look at issues from different perspectives
- I really liked the peer writing workshops for the second and third essays. I wish we would have done it for the first essay too because I think that would have made my essay stronger.
- A focus on more basic academic writing rather than philosophical writing would have been more helpful. I still feel that I have not learned how to write sufficiently for per se an English class.
- He is a Professor who really cares about his students and making sure the students understand the material, and why it is relevant. I was intimidated at the beginning of the semester with the course load and grading, but feel like I learned a lot throughout the semester, and developed habits through this class that I will use all throughout college.
- One thing I wish we had done more of was smaller writing assignments that weren't essays but were bigger than the weekly writing grade. I like the writing grade but I feel like I could have improved more if I had had more time and work to do on the writing. I think this would have helped me grab the concept of writing arguments and building on that in a strong way for this class sooner if I had to work on it outside of the class .
- I dont like this course at all but i enjoy the class its not because the content but on how you present it to us it is entertaining and i have ever been bored, keep up with that. And one thing i think you should consider adding is giving lessons about grammar and styles since that is not something everyone knows.
- One thing I really liked about the class was the logic section. Through this I was able to apply logic in both my writings and reasoning. My problem with the class was diversity. Most of the articles was focused on the western culture making it harder for others from different background to contribute.
- One aspect of the course I liked was the logic warmups and learning about logic. It helped me find direction for my essays and follow a structure. This improved my writing greatly, as writing is already one of my weaknesses. One thing to improve on the class is to teach a little grammar and literary devices, so if some students are struggling with that aspect.
- The bad: The course was difficult because of my lack of writing skills before starting this class. The content itself was difficult to wrap my head around. The good: I enjoyed Dr. Gould as a professor and as a person. Very good with students and doesn't hesitate to help or make conversation which wasn't something that I got with my other professors. The content, though difficult, very satisfying to learn.
