I have gone to the RWC a couple times already now.

To reach out when I need help, especially to the writing center and use resources on campus.

To reach out and always ask for help and use resources!

become more organized get involved on campus, utilize campus resources, embrace what a liberal arts college is

Declare a major, use academic resources

Change my mindset completely, helped transform me into a better student overall

b. To direct my experience connecting with others on campus, LSC300 has guided me to take the following steps this term:

LSC 300 has helped me find a new club to join. I met new people because of this Join clubs and attend meetings weekly if possible.

To talk to others and join a community reach out to others on campus

go to the reading writing center, use the campus counseling resources, apply for research, and join clubs

Join a club

Connect with people I would have not otherwise

c. To direct my understanding myself and my life beyond campus, LSC300 has guided me to take the following steps this term:

Make a course plan for myself

Try to find myself and learn my strengths and weaknesses.

To learn writing and reading

meet new people

apply to summer research programs, look into study abroad, and work at a hospital off campus

Think about how I think reach out and join a club I would have been hesitant to otherwise

I thought that the structure, teaching, and content of this class was great. I learned a lot of helpful information in a short amount of time and felt comfortable expressing my thoughts in the classroom. Dr. Gould is a great professor.

I really liked this course, but the grading was very hard. I felt like no matter if I put 5 hours or 5 minutes in I would fail.

I enjoyed the class and the setup

LCS300 was very helpful in getting acclimated to Augie. The course was only half a semester which could be viewed as a limitation, however, I also feel prepared to go out on my own and get involved.

It was fun and very enlightening as to what a liberal arts education should be.

Great job Dr Gould, this class was very useful
